
STILL IN USE — Now known as the Rockway School, this building in Mishicot once housed upwards of 320 grade school and high school students. Built in 1905 and enlarged in 1920, the school is still used for several kindergarten classes. Use of the building declined after completion of the Mishicot Community High School in 1958 and the elementary school in 1965. When the Mishicot school district was consolidated in 1953, it was served by 21 one-room school houses and the Rockway facility. The cupola on top of the building was later removed. This picture was furnished by Lester J. Kornely, Manitowoc, a Mishicot High School alumnus. Lakeshore Area residents are invited to submit photographs of at least 20 years ago to Remember When?, P.O. Box 688, Manitowoc, Wis., 54220.